Representatives Call the Senate Bill Hard Names.

A Conference Necessary on the Tariff Bill.

MISSHAPEN MONSTER.

Mr. Harter Thinks it Should be Rejected Outright.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—[Special.]—All the talk now is as to the reception of the voluminously amended Wilson bill as it comes to the house-and what will they do with it? The attempt to create a sentiment in favor of its immediate passage soon ended, for the adverse feeling proved simply overwhelming. All the members express their views with great plainness, and nearly all concede that with the great variety of opinions there must still be considerable delay. Mr. Springer's idea that the necessities of the treasury would justify the immediate acceptance and passage of the bill as it came from the senato met with very little encouragement. Mr. Har-ter's vehement protest that the bill should be rejected outright, because no bill at all would be better than "such an ill begotten and misshapen monster," met with still less favor. It is a fair estimate to say that nine-tenths of the house Democrats are for the speedy passage of a bill and yet insist on some changes. On this subject Mr. Bynum says:

Congressman Bynum's Views. "All this talk about an immediate agreement without conference is rot. . There is not a man on this side who is so far satisfied as to let it go without a pro-test. Even if they should have to yield at the last, every man wants to put himself on record against many of the senate amendents. And they will take time to do that regardless of pressure from any-

"Would it be possible to let this bill go Into effect at once with the understanding that it binds nobody and that a movement for further amendment is to begin at once, as has been proposed?"

"No. The proposition is ridiculous. I am satisfied that whatever bill this house accepts must stand as the settled tariff policy for five years and possibly for 10. It is true, as they say, that only one tariff in our history has ever stood 10 years unchanged, but there are too many new conditions now for that fact to stand as a precedent. There are too many interests combined in favor of stability and too many laborers interested. Of course there will be amendments proposed at every session of congress, and probably some of them New channels of business are opening all the time, new articles are brought into use, and so new clauses must be added to a tariff law, but the Democrats may as well understand that they will be responsible for whatever bill becomes a law, and it will be considered that they are bound by it. Of course we gentlemen who are now here cannot bind the same the bill which is passed will be bill, and all the interests will expect us to be bound by our own work."

The Populist View. It was amusing to hear the remarks of other Indiana members on the Bynum view, and still more so to hear those of takes the straight Populist view lately set forth with such ability by Senator Kylethat there is no such thing possible as stability in a protective tariff and that nobody is bound morally, legally or in any other way by any tariff bill ever passed. All the Populists laugh at the idea of any tariff bill being a finality or being fixed beyoud the next term of congress and declare with rather rough wit that it is "just an old piece of Republican claptrap which the Democrats have picked up according to their custom." Several southern Democrats take substantially the same view. and one of this class, Hon. Hugh Dinsmore, says: "My view is somewhat like that of the Dutch justice of the peace in the old story, who said, 'I will take two days to study over this case, but I can say right now that I will finally decide for the plaintiff.' After a deal of discussion we shall accept the senate bill substantially, always excepting the one-eighth differential duty on sugar. We won't have that at any price. This house never will agree to it. The Republicans have poured whole barrels of sarcasm on us for giving up to the Sugar trust and allowing this oneeighth of a cent per pound extra on refined sugar, forgetting the fact or trying to make others forget it that they gave the trust one-half of a cent a pound. On that point you ought to see Warner, as he has it all down fine. The necessities of the treas ury will hurry us a little, and we will get through rapidly and yield almost everything except the sugar differential. That

Hon. John Do Witt Warner, it scarcely necessary to add, dealt with the subject far more emphatically. He has a whole magazine of figures to show that the sugar refiners need no extra protection whatever, because they can refine as cheaply in this as in any other country. His views have been published in one shape or another so often that it is only necessary to give his very latest conclusion, which is that the labor cost of refining 100 pounds of sugar is only 14 cents in Brooklyn, while it is 22 cents in Cuba and 34 cents in England. He is quite as positive as Mr. Dinsmore that the senate's differential duty on sugar will be rejected, though everything else has to be accepted to balance it. In all the talk in the house it is evident that the latest developments before the senate investigating committee have had a great effect. Both the committee and the District jury seem inclined to deal very tenderly with Messrs. Schriver and Edwards, the correspondents, but they show plainly that they would like to deal severely with Mr. Havemeyer and a few others. Senator Allen is particularly vigorous on this subject, and it is said about the capitol that if my one has gained by the investigation it

He made the motion in the committee that Messrs. Havemeyer and Searles be certified to the grand jury for prosecution under the statute, and there was a very lively debate, but the two Republican. Senators Lodge and Davis, sustained him, while Senators Gray and Lindsay voted He then moved to have the two gentlemen brought before the bar of the senate, but all the other committeemen voted against this. Incidentally it has come out that the Louisians men and the beet sugar interest would have been contented with a slightly lower tariff and cared nothing at all for the differential duty. That was entirely the work of the trust, which further sharpens the animosity of the house against that institution.

Trees were blown down, or entirely stripped of their foliage all over this city. When the storm had abated, a funnel shaped cloud passed over the city with a roar that could be heard for miles.

THE THIRTEENTH WEEK.

The Senate Still Discussing the Income Tax Feature of Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 26 .- With the thermometer standing at 88 degrees in the senate chamber today, the senate entered upon the thirteenth week of the tariff debate.

At the opening of the session Mr. to secure action on his resolution directing the secretary of the treasury to in-form the senate of the total number of persons engaged in protected industries, whose wages might be affected by the tariff legislation. Mr. Gallinger (Rep.) objected, and Mr. Morrill moved to refer it to the finance committee.

Mr. Allen gave notice that as long as the resolution remained unacted upon, he would object to all legislation by Mr. Morrill's motion was defeated by a vote of 16 to 27. The senate resumed the consideration of the income tax provisions of the tariff

Mr. Hill withdrew the amendment offered on Saturday to strike out the provision exempting the interest on United States bonds from the operation of the tax. His object in offering the amend-ment, Mr. Hill said, was to call attention of the country to the fact that $635,000,000 of property in government bonds were necessarily exempt from the operation from the income tax under the law, although the ostensible purpose of the income tax was to reach wealth and equalize taxation.

There was an enormous investment of capital which the income tax could not reach. Mr. Hill then moved to exempt gentlemen who are now here cannot bind our successors in any legal way, but just the argued that the faxation of the same the bill which is passed will be state bonds by the federal govern-looked upon as the Democratic party's ment would be a direct attack upon administration of the states, the federal government had the right to diminish the value of state bonds and securities it had the right to destroy

> Aside from the question of the exercise of the doubtful power, injustice to the states which senators represented on this floor and upon which this tax bore harshly. Mr. Hill thought the states should have the right to issue bonds, without being subject to federal taxation. Mr. Hill's amendment to the income tax to exempt state, county and municipal bonds from the operations of the income tax was lost 25 to 30. A second amendment offered by Mr. Hill exempting state bonds from the operation of the income tax was lost

HORSES FOR SALE OR SHOW

How to Feed and Prepare Them to Stand the Test.

A friend came into the writer's office a few days ago and said: "I have just had sent me a gelding that is badly run down, all 'bunged up,' in fact, and the sender wants me to fix him up. He has taken the horse on a debt and his former owner says he has plenty of speed. The horse looks as though he had not had a mouthful of grain all winter and very little hay. He is as thin as any horse I ever saw, is bad'y constipated, and from the starving process to which he has been subjected his intestines and stomach are in very bad shape. His legs seem to be all right, but what

The first thing to be done with a horse in this state is to give him copious injections of warm water and soapsuds, and with about three ounces of glycerin to the pailful of warm water. This will remove the mucous discharge which accompanies the freces. Then give the starveling a small bran mash-very small-for his contracted stomach will not stand a large one. Give him this with a boiled root or two twice the first day and a fairly liberal allowance of hay. He may eat more hay than is good for him if allowed it at first, so his ration must be restricted. The second day give him three small mashes, and the third day give him 11/2 pints of raw linseed oil. Continue the mashes, increasing their size if no signs of colic appear, and the fourth day give him another quart of linseed oil, as before. This will most likely purge him severely, but that is what is wanted. Continue the injections till the third day, operating three Allen made another ineffectual attempt | times the first day and twice on each of the succeeding days. If the first oleate operates well, give a final injection at night and lay the syringe by.

After the oil has done all that it will do the mashes may be increased, and at the end of the first week a little crushed oats should be added to the bran, which should always be fed warm, but not sloppy. If the weather is not too cold, and the box in which the patient is kept is a warm one, the clippers should be run over his bony frame. The loss of the heavy coat will be a relief. If the box is a cold one or the weather severe, the coat should remain till circumstances warrant its removal. It should be taken off as soon as possible. At the end of the tenth day or thereabouts, according to the severity of the case, grain may be added, the fattening process may be begun. The most important agent that may be employed is milk, in conjunction with flaxseed. Take ground flaxseed-the pure article, not the refuse of the oil mills commonly known as oilmeal-add boiling water to it and let it stand till the whole mass has assumed the form of a jelly. Then give three times a day, lightly at first, and increase it till the animal's full capacity is reached, a ration compounded in the following proportions: The jelly formed by a pound of linseed, 3 pounds crushed oats, 2 quarts bran, a quart measure full of hay cut into three-quarter inch lengths and wet the whole with 3 quarts of new milk-skimmilk will do if new milk cannot be had.

This will be rather too heavy a ration at first, but it can be decreased, observing the proportions. Let this be given three times a day at first, and after a week add the following: Give the first feed at 6 a. m. At 12 m. give this drink: The jelly from a pound of flaxseed, 3 quarts of milk, 2 quarts of warm water and the meal of a pound of crushed oats. Mix the whole together and gather the husks off the drink as they rise. At 2 p. m. give the regular feed, again at 7 p. m., and at 9 p. m. give drink. In a month the horse may be made to put on not less than 100 pounds of meat. Of course this will not be very serviceable meat, but by dry feeding and tapering off the milk and mash it can be utilized very well.

This system of feeding will make flesh quicker than any other and may be adopted with perfect safety if the attendant will take the trouble to notice how the amounts given are affecting the patient. The whole secret consists in first mechanically removing the effects of starvation on the intestines and then gradually working the digestive apparatus up to its fullest capacity. Until the stomach is able to take care of the full ration the effects of each feed must be observed so as to prevent the animal being "stalled." The horse may not like the milk at first, but he can soon be got to take it and crave for it. - Horseman.

CY HAS GONE.

Corning Won't Stay With the Populists But Goes to the Prohibs.

Cyrus Corning, the old time reformer, who was a reformer before the reform party was organized, and who has for the last two years been criticizing the Lewelling administration, has left the Populist party.

He has packed up his doll rags and refused to play any longer because he couldn't be "mother."

When the Populist state convention renominated Governor Lewelling, Corning could stand it no longer and he and his paper, the New Era, are not now counted among the Populist faithful.

In the last issue of his paper Corning announces a change of heart and gives notice that he will in the present campaign support the Prohibition ticket. He' publishes a large portrait of L. O. Pickering, the Prohibition candidate for governor, and says he will support Pickering for governor.

ABILENE, June 26 .- Sid. G. Cooke, of Herington, chairman of the Dickinson Democratic delegation to Topeka, has been in the city and stated that while the members of the delegation are fusionists they will oppose endorsing Lewelling. "There is no doubt," said he, "that a Democratic candidate for governor will be nominated. The delegates will per-haps favor endorsing part of the Popu-list ticket but not all of it.

"One thing is certain they have no use for Lewelling or the Pop platform. So far as equal suffrage is concerned they will probably favor a resolution demanding the repeal of the statute allowing women to vote in municipal elections."

BANK OFFICERS CHANGED.

The Cashier and Assistant of the Robbed Eldorado Bank Are Deposed.

ELDORADO, June 26.—The stockholders of the Exchange national bank of this city, at the election of officers deposed H. H. Gardner, cashier, and J. D. Rearick, his assistant. The robbery of last March, in which $15,700 was taken, has not been solved. A change has been looked for for some time,

Mr. Gardner made a statement to the public, in which he says himself and assistant are made the victims of the robbery, and that, while he was in the east having a surgical operation performed, a scheme was put up to turn him out, which has worked. He promised some new light on the subject.

TWO BIG RAINS.

Nearly Two Inches of Rainfall in the Last Two Days.

Already there has fallen this month month 6.37 inches of rain. This is very large, as the average rainfall for June in this locality is 4.36 inches. There is pretty liable to be two or three more in ches before the the first of July, and this will make the month of June an exception in the way of rainfall. The largest rainfall recorded for June was in 1887, when 9.57 inches fell. The smallest was in 1892, when .92 inches fell.

The rain of Saturday night was .92 of an inch. Last night 1.01 inches of rain fell.
